Hi, These days, the way people make music is changing massively. For instance, it's possible to make a song with just an acoustic guitar and your Internet browser. There are now apps specifically designed for those who want to compose electronic music from scratch - everything from live recorders for creating musical ideas as you go to hip-hop production tools that help you create a unique sound. In this article I'm going to look at some of the tools that have been making waves in the market recently and break them down for you so you can decide which is right for your project. If a new, major platform with a huge community of music enthusiasts and producers wishes to bring a new technology in the industry, it will be no surprise with how popular the new app is going to be. This is exactly what has happened when programmers from Planet Geeks created the Mixvibes.net website in 2005. The website quickly became an important platform for electronic musicians with customers all over the world. In 2012, it was time to build something with greater capabilities and thus Mixvibes Renaissance was born. The newly developed application has been more than welcomed by music producers and DJs alike who want to create something unique and more of their own sound. Mixvibes features a lot of incredibly useful features that makes it perfect for music producers. The first big thing that grabs your attention is the new mixing engine. The most important feature of this engine is its ability to create unlimited sounds tracks for you. This means you aren't limited with the number of sounds you have in your tracks - which can sometimes be really difficult when you are trying to create something extremely unique. The new mixing engine uses the most advanced signal processing techniques which makes it possible to create just about any sound with just a few clicks. It also supports the most popular DAWs, including Ableton Live, Cubase, Logic Pro X, FL Studio and more with their integrated plugins. For creating the best sounds, Mixvibes uses two different techniques. These are the time sync feature which allows you to copy the exact volume levels of your tracks, and waveform matching. The waveform matching technique enables you to get a feeling of where all your sounds are coming from and it also means that they will be in perfect sync with each other. Mixvibes can be used in a host of different ways for mixing and creating music. It features a wide range of tools which you can use to add effects, adjust pan levels and create the sounds you have in mind. The best thing about Mixvibes is that it enables you to do all of this at the same time. In other words, the program supports multi-tasking. This means that if you have a problem with one of your sounds, you can just go ahead and change it while continuing with the other tracks in your project. This makes it possible for people to get their projects done much faster - which is priceless for electronic musicians who want to get their music out there as soon as possible.
