About This Game

Backstory

Marine and her friends have six days to find the four remaining warriors and make it to the showdown!

With such tight schedule and dramatic events piling up, Marine's nerves are all over the place.

But Jeanne the tiny fairy is back! And this alone helps even the balance!

Millennium 4 is probably the most suspenseful, thrilling and emotional entry in the series - a must-play for all Millennium fans out there!

Millenium is an amazing game series, this is the first RPG I ever played on Steam and I haven't yet found anything that beats it. Millenium will always be my favouite I couldn't recommend it any more highly.. this episode is by far once of the most difficult to master. By the end all characters will have been recruited. There is a lot of jumping in this story part esp. through the Grand Rift. there still are hidden rooms but most of the game is getting to recruit the Bear. the story mainly focuses on that particular part. Dissent starts to show amongst the recruits and it takes a lot of talking and self- confidence to get the party going again. Game seems rather slow story -wise during this episode but is still a good game to play. Now down to days remaining to the deadline, Marine and company need to prepare for the contest to come and finish their roster of fighters. They head to the last portion of the continent, yet to be explored: the South. In that area, you will search for "The Bear" a legendary warrior.

You start at level 40, but since you need to train in hand-to-hand and the like... that may not be so helpful.... I have to say this is the best RPG Maker series I have EVER played in my life. Every single part in this Millennium series overall is five out of five stars. It is not too challenging, and has the right mix of play, upgrades, maps, quests and good characters. I admit I never complete all the side quests in the game, but I play the entire game to the end and love every second of it.

This takes a lot for me to really get into games. I love how you can select your level of difficulty (I always select story mode for a more visionary and involved gameplay), you can select arrows that show you overall where to go, because it can be easy to get lost or take too long to find your way in these games (This is a BIG plus for me). Another big thumbs up is the ability to have VISIBLE monster encounters, so whenever possible we can avoid them. I absolutely HATE random surprise encounters, that not only interrupt the flow of the game, but take away your concentration from where you were at.

Also, the music score is one of the best ever, and has some very melodic catchy tunes, and soft moody background expressions in the scores. Very nice and rare to see this in a JRPG/VRPG maker game. Many of the games seem to repeat the same flat audio/music, and I am happy to see the Millennium series is more unique.

And finally, I love that you can import the last saved game from part to part so you take your levels and most items with you. I highly recommend this game series!
